Mr. Dulles has asked me to reply to your letter of 19 February.

In the process of assuming his new responsibilities, he has had to limit his discussions and conferences with the many citizens who have a genuine desire to assist in the activities with which he is now charged and, therefore, feels unable to designate for the time being an occasion when you might have a chance to confer with him.

Thank you, however, for offering to be of service to us.

Sincerely,
